DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Buckner et al. in view of Gerenski et al.

Buckner discloses the heat-dissipating fan module for an electronic apparatus comprising: a casing 11 having an opening, said opening having a guiding device 16, 17 along an edge, and a heat-dissipating fan 21 fixed into one side of said casing and correspondingly disposed on said opening; the guiding device extended from the edge of the opening and inclined toward the axis of the opening; the casing and the guiding device are disposed to form a particular angle in the range from 5 to 90 degrees; the casing further comprises a reticular portion 32 integrally formed therewith and disposed at the corresponding position of said opening; the reticular plate is separably fixed to one side of the casing for covering said opening. Buckner discloses the claimed invention except having the airflow guiding device integrally formed along the edge of the opening. Gerensky discloses the airflow guide 32 that is formed integral along the edge of the material forming the opening. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the guiding device as disclosed by Gerensky in the arrangement disclosed by Buckner in order to optimize the manufacturing of the element and simplify its assembly. Buckner discloses the claimed invention except for metal material for the guiding device. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have the guiding device made of metal, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.

Buckner discloses the claimed invention except having heat-dissipating fan without a frame. The prior art shown in the instant application (see Fig. 1B) discloses the unframed fan being attached to the reticular plate. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use unframed fan as disclosed in the prior art shown in the instant application in order to eliminate additional component and reduce costs.

Buckner discloses the claimed invention except for integrally formed casing and the reticular plate. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the casing and reticular plate integrally formed or separably fixed, since it has been held that forming in one piece an article which has formerly been formed in two pieces and put together involves only routine skill in the art. Howard v. Detroit Stove Works, 150 U.S. 164 (1893).

Buckner discloses the claimed invention except the electronic apparatus to be a power supply. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the claimed fan module for power supply since it has been held that a recitation with respect to the manner in which a claimed apparatus is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from a prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987).

3. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
